Those Who Sing Pray Twice
Cantor Workshop Review

On Monday, February 26, 16 singers and directors attended the Cantor Workshop at St. Ambrose Church in Cheverly, MD. Amy Massey and Valerie Kopinski, the co-presenters, did a wonderful job of enlightening the group on the role of the cantor in light of the bishop’s document Sing to the Lord: Music in Divine Worship. They particularly emphasized that the Psalm is the Word of God and should be well prepared and prayed by the cantor.

Next they moved to basics of vocal technique and vocal warm-ups. This was followed by opportunities for individuals to sing in front of the group and receive personal feedback on how to improve their singing and conveying of the text. The participants were enjoying the event so much that they stayed almost 30 minutes longer to support and hear each other sing. Everyone also received handouts with college-level information on singing, tone production, vowels and modifications, Latin pronunciation, and vocal health. A great event that should be repeated by Amy and Valerie again in the future!

The musical proclamation of the Responsorial Psalm refrain and verses during the Octave of Easter is sung praise at its very best.

Easter Sunday’s Psalm 118 joyously announces: “This is the day the Lord has made; let us rejoice and be glad in it!” And to punctuate the elation surrounding Christ’s Resurrection, each Gospel Acclamation after Sunday repeats that psalm refrain throughout the Octave.

Along with the Easter Alleluias, the Octave liturgies include these psalm refrains: “The earth is full of the goodness of the Lord,” “Rejoice, O hearts that seek the Lord,” and “O Lord, our God, how wonderful your name in all the earth.”

_Sing to the Lord: Music in Divine Worship_ tells us that the Responsorial Psalm is an “integral part of the Liturgy of the Word” and “is intended to foster meditation on the Word of God.” Respecting and recognizing their origins, _Sing to the Lord_, citing the _General Instruction of the Roman Missal_, calls psalms “poems of praise that are meant, whenever possible, to be sung.”

We pastoral musicians know that; we embrace that. That’s why I admittedly squirm every rare occasion I must speak the Responsorial Psalm in a liturgy without music. Another uncomfortable moment occurs when I explain to some budget-minded young couples planning their wedding music why the services of a cantor are needed for the Responsorial Psalm during their upcoming ceremony or Mass. The psalm screams to be whenever, wherever!

Even though we find comfort in our role in psalmody, a refresher in its art and practice awaits us at our Arlington and DC chapters’ jointly sponsored workshop this month with presenter Sr. Kathleen Harmon. A renowned educator and musician, she has authored and co-authored an extensive array of publications. Among them is _Becoming the Psalms: A Spirituality of Singing and Praying the Psalms._

Sr. Kathleen promises to help us continue our journey through the Easter Season – and beyond – in her presentation, _Singing the Psalms Shapes Who We Are_, on Saturday morning, April 28 at Our Lady of Good Counsel parish in Vienna, VA. That journey has a special place in our roles as pastoral musicians, whether we’re singing, directing, planning, composing or merely contemplating the psalms. Read more about Sr. Kathleen and the workshop on page 3.

We hope to see you there!

Arlington Chapter Director
There is a reason why the community of the Church has sung the psalms as part of the liturgy from earliest days. These songs of praise and cries of lament lead us to encounter God and ourselves at the deepest level of faith and discipleship. Singing the psalms shapes who we are as people of faith, as music ministers, and as leaders of the liturgy.

NPM DC Lenten Retreat

It’s possible to have heard a passage or story countless times and think you appreciate its full meaning. Then someone presents it in a whole new light, and it's as though you never heard the words before.

That’s how it was with the scripture on which Fr. Daniel J. Issing, C.S.C., based his reflections at the Lenten Retreat on March 3. He chose passages from the 12th & 13th Chapters of the Gospel of John: the grain of wheat that must die before it can produce fruit; Jesus’ entry into Jerusalem; and Jesus’ washing the disciples’ feet at the Last Supper. He took these stories of long ago and made it seem as though they were written directly for us, as we work through the complexities of life in this modern world.

Fr. Dan led participants in a meditation on "The Mystery that Contains Us," that is, the Paschal Mystery. Beginning with the "smallness of God" and linking the Passion of Jesus with the suffering here and now, he invited retreatants to meditate on how sin, repentance, forgiveness and reconciliation widen our life to experience God's providence and mercy as the truth of the universe. From there, Fr. Dan moved on to the "largesse of God" and how God saves us. God always invites us to move from the way things are to deeper communion and the peace of Christ. The path is through dying to self and losing what we cling to. In this we are united to Christ and we experience God's power and mercy. God gives us seed to spread prodigiously, sowing for a future of Christ's peace.

At the conclusion of the retreat, Fr. Dan spoke of Pope Francis’ emphasis on mercy, and asked us – as pastoral musicians – how mercy might challenge us in our parish life.

When congregational singing was introduced into the celebration of the Sunday liturgy in the 1960s, many musicians, clergy, and ordinary Catholics thought that there would no longer be a need for choirs. As it turned out, however, choirs are more needed than ever. Liturgical documents highlight the choir’s ministry, and pastoral experience has demonstrated the choir’s importance in supporting and leading the singing of the whole assembly. In fact, many parishes today boast a variety of choirs that sing music in various styles. In addition to the standard mixed-voice adult choir, there are Gospel choirs, contemporary music ensembles, children’s choirs, youth choirs, funeral choirs, and family choirs.

The primary ministerial role of the choir is to sing various parts of the Mass in dialogue or in alternation with the rest of the assembly. Some parts of the Mass, like the Kyrie and the Agnus Dei, have the back-and-forth form of a litany, so they work well as this kind of dialogue. Other parts have a call-and-response form, in which the choir intones a line that is repeated by the congregation. The Gospel acclamation works a bit like this. Other parts of the Mass may be sung in various ways—sometimes by the choir alone, sometimes by the whole assembly, sometimes in alternation between the choir (or a cantor) and everyone else. Two long texts may be sung this way: The Gloria may be sung by everyone together, or by the congregation alternately with the choir, or even by the choir alone; and the profession of faith may be sung by all together or alternately between the congregation and the choir. The three major processional chants of the liturgy—the entrance, offertory, and Communion chants—may be sung alternately between the choir and the congregation or even by the choir alone, and the first two (entrance and offertory) may be sung by all together.

The place for the choir in the building reflects its ritual function: The official texts say that the choir should be located where it is clearly part of the whole assembly but also where it can best do its assigned tasks. Whether singing with the rest of the assembly, in alternation, or alone, the choir’s role is always understood in relation to the full, conscious, and active participation of the faithful. When it is not singing its own special repertoire, the choir joins the song of the whole assembly, supporting the congregation and adding beauty and variety to the singing by harmonies and descants.

Whether singing with the rest of the assembly, in alternation, or alone, the choir’s role is always understood in relation to the full, conscious, and active participation of the faithful. When it is not singing its own special repertoire, the choir joins the song of the whole assembly, supporting the congregation and adding beauty and variety to the singing by harmonies and descants.

To perform their liturgical task, choirs need plenty of rehearsal, for it is only when the music is well prepared that the choir can really support the singing of the whole assembly. Thorough preparation is also needed if choral singing is to express the mystery of God through beauty and if it is to foster the dignity of the celebration.

The participation of the assembly receives an enormous boost if a parish has a good liturgical choir, but the role of the choir is always ministerial, serving the action of the liturgy and fostering the participation of those who have gathered.
Hats Off!

Christ is Risen: The world below lies desolate
Christ is Risen: The spirits of evil are fallen
Christ is Risen: The angels of God are rejoicing
Christ is Risen: The tombs of the dead are empty
Christ is Risen indeed from the dead,
the first of the sleepers,
Glory and power are his forever and ever.
